MANIFESTOES WITHOUT SUBSTANCE

What is a Manifesto?

The word "manifesto" is derived from the Latin word "manifestum," meaning clear or evident. It serves as a comprehensive and detailed document that outlines a political party's vision for society, its proposed solutions to various issues, and its commitments to the electorate if they are elected to govern. Manifestos are also a means for political parties to establish credibility and demonstrate their understanding of the challenges faced by society. They serve as a roadmap to convince voters that the party's vision aligns with the aspirations and needs of the public. A typical political manifesto includes several key components:

- Presents the party's overarching vision for the country or region it aims to represent and highlights the core values that guide its decisions and actions.
- Outlines specific policy proposals on a wide range of subjects such as the economy, education, healthcare, environment, foreign affairs, defense, social welfare, and more.
 These proposals detail the party's stance on each issue and how they plan to address them.
- Promises made by the party to the electorate, aimed at winning their support and trust. These promises can vary from tax cuts, job creation, and infrastructure development, to improvements in various sectors.
- A critique of the policies and ideas put forward by competing political parties. This is to highlight the differences and contrast their approach with that of the opponents.
- Historical context, explaining how certain societal or economic issues have evolved and how the party's proposed policies can address those issues effectively.

Objective

The primary objective of a manifesto of a political party is to present a clear and persuasive case to the voters about why they should support the party in an upcoming election. It aims to showcase the party's ideology, principles, and policy priorities, providing a blueprint for governance if the party is elected to power.

Significance

The significance of a manifesto of a political party cannot be overstated. It plays a crucial role in shaping public opinion and informing voters about a party's platform. Voters often use manifestos as a basis for assessing whether a party's proposed policies and ideas align with their own values and interests. A well-crafted manifesto can have a significant impact on an election campaign. It can rally party supporters, attract swing voters, and sway undecided individuals. Additionally, once a party is elected, its manifesto serves as a benchmark against which its performance and progress can be measured. However, it is essential to note that not all parties adhere strictly to their manifesto once in power due to practical challenges, changing circumstances, and compromises during coalition governments.

PIDE's thoughts on a Manifesto

In the grand theater of democracy, a manifesto is the opening act that captivates minds, fuels discussions, and rallies support. It stands as a testament to a party's integrity and ability to forge a path forward. The significance of a political party's manifesto is akin to the foundational blueprint of a grand architectural masterpiece. It embodies the very essence of a party's ideals, aspirations, and commitment to its constituents. Just as a skilled architect meticulously plans each detail before constructing a magnificent edifice, a manifesto outlines the principles, policies, and proposed pathways that guide a political party's journey. Everything in the realm of politics starts with a manifesto. Much like the first brushstroke on a canvas, a manifesto shapes the contours of a party's narrative and sets the tone for its engagement with the electorate. Moreover, a manifesto is a covenant of accountability. By pledging specific courses of action, a party makes a solemn promise to its people. This binding commitment holds a party answerable to its stated goals and, in turn, empowers the electorate to demand transparency and efficacy in the realization of those promises. Thus, everything, from the shaping of policies to the forging of a nation's destiny, starts with the resolute words etched within a manifesto.

Pakistan's Case

Political manifestos of political parties in Pakistan vary in nature and quality. Some manifestos are well-crafted documents that outline a party's vision, policy goals, and plans for governance. However, these manifestos seldom include detailed proposals, which provide a clear roadmap for how the party intends to address these issues if elected to power. This is why political manifestos are often criticized as being mere promises without a concrete plan for implementation. Manifestos of almost all political parties in Pakistan lack specificity, feasibility, or practicality, leading to skepticism about the party's intentions and ability to deliver on its commitments.

So, for this reason, we have attempted to draw a comparison of 2018 manifestos amongst three mainstream political parties that are front-runners is formulating governments during last three tenures, against the benchmark of "What PIDE proposes" in parallel.

How did we calculate?

PIDE has been proposing reforms in various dimensions for quite a long now. These targeted reform proposals are based on years of research, evidence and are in line with the global best practices. So, we have picked some key issues/sectors which we at PIDE think are fundamental in nature. This means that if we are to kick-start the reform process, addressing these primary issues comes first, acting as a bedrock for further comprehensive reforms. We summarized PIDE proposals in four points for each theme, having equal weightage for each point i.e. 25%, making it 100% for all four points. We then compared it with what each political party is proposing against the same theme. If their manifestoes proposed one of the points that PIDE proposes then the score will be 25/100 and if their proposals included all that PIDE proposes, then that manifesto will get full marks i.e. 100/100. It is pertinent to note that, manifestoes are being evaluated on actual reform intervention, not mere promises, slogans and sweeping statements. For instance, strengthening local government is merely a promise and scored as zero. In contrast, allowing the property tax regime to serve as the primary revenue generator for local government is a concrete point. Thus, this point had been given a 25 score.

Analysis

As evident from the scorecard, all three political parties do not do any homework, except for a couple of themes – in those too, the score is not remarkable. One can only find big slogans, sweeping statements, and hollow promises. There is no clear road map, no concrete intervention proposals, no blueprint for reform implementation.

As shown in the scorecard, PPP scored zero in 17 indicators, PTI in 13 and PML-N in 12. Overall, the three major political parties scored less than 20%, which means that they talk about or have some solid ideas about only 20% of the key economic and policy issues of Pakistan. Further dissecting the figure 20% tells us out of the country's key issues, only 12% of these find space in the PML-N manifesto, 7% in the PTI manifesto and 1.5% in PPP.

One wonders, how and on what these political parties compete with one another. A look at the above scorecards would imply that more or less all three parties are the same, as far as the manifestoes are concerned. It is a point to ponder, why the public is divided over more or less alike political parties, as reflected from the manifestoes. It is time to take manifestoes seriously, and compel our representatives to focus on manifestoes and add issues of concern to common people, along with proposing comprehensive proposals and clear-cut implementation strategies. This would allow the public to compare the manifestoes in a better way and consequently would do better in voting most deserved political party – the one having done proper homework, knowing what to do if they come into power and if they do, the implementation can start immediately. This would also save time from making misfit task forces to propose reforms that usually mean nothing but optics – only bureaucratic and administrative shuffling, whereas reform means setting the fundamentals right.

Conclusion

The superficiality of Pakistani political parties' manifestoes, particularly the economic side of it, is a technical shortcoming that has far-reaching implications for the country's economic development. The absence of quantitative targets, shallow policy proposals, and neglect of structural reforms, trade, and investment strategies, as well as human capital and innovation, signify an alarming lack of technical rigor. A more evidence-based, quantifiable, and technically detailed approach is imperative to tackle Pakistan's intricate policy challenges effectively and drive sustainable economic growth.

PIDE hopes that insights from this knowledge brief will make political parties ponder over the upcoming manifestoes. Thus, anticipating that latest manifestoes will be not be just hollow ones, but having concrete and targetted blueprints for reforms to put Pakistan on the right track.

Energy	Restructuring focus must be on renewable energy for electricity generation. Renewable sources for electricity generation shall be used to develop a retail supply market for off-grid areas Prepaid billing must be introduced. Distribution Companies (DISCOs) must be decentralized. A uniform tariff system must be eliminated.	Pledge to complete all affordable and feasible projects related to hydro-electricity. Complete Bhasha Dam soon. We will ensure that the Bhasha Dam project. Resume work on the Pak-Iran pipeline. Facilitate provinces to have their own grid systems for the transmission and distribution of power.	Promoting off-grid solar and cluster - based mini -grid solutions supported by innovative concessional financing in remote areas, especially for tube wells. Extending the grid through rural electrification plan. Opening of distribution market to the private sector to break monopolies and enhance competition. Building a hub for regional energy trade.	Shifting away from rent-seeking models to increase system efficiency. Completion rural electrification through renewable and off -grid solutions. Transitioning towards "power exchange", allowing more efficient technologies to get precedence in dispatch. Incentivizing the adoption of energy-efficient initiatives on demand side and reducing transmission losses.
		Promotion of clean energy (micro-hydels, solar and wind energy) at different scales through provision of financing and 'one window' approvals.	Doubling transmission capacity through a South -North and Gwadar - Nawabshah pipelines, replacing petroleum trucking with pipelines, reducing Unaccounted For Gas (UFG) through smart metering and improving collection rates to reduce the economic cost of energy.
Taxation	The tax system must be made more progressive while eliminating tax breaks. Instead, universal income tax treatment must be followed. The tax system must be more straightforward and user-friendly and have increased transparency and fairness. A revenue-yielding buoyant tax regime must be formulated, with a focus on expanding the tax net and not raising revenue f rom only the existing taxpayers. Mechanisms to monitor and catch tax evasion and corruption must be developed and implemented.	Free installation of Point of Sale (POS) system will be offered by the government for the retail sector to improve documentation of the economy, along with solici ting track and trace software to prevent tax evasion.	Double the tax revenue. Operationalize National Single Window, reducing time and trade costs and bringing over 20 government departments under one window. Establish Directorate for immovable property t o stop under - declaration of immovable assets. Establish online connectivity within provinces for automatic business registration for taxpayers. Introduce electronic real-time data exchange to check mis -declaration and under - invoicing for imports.	Integrating tax registration with associated processes to reduce the transaction cost of paying taxes. Incentivizing businesses to become a part of the formal economy, thus adding larger sources of tax income to the national exchequer.
Tariff	Tariff lines must be rationalized. Tariff lines must be reduced. A clear perspective is required regarding the extent of openness. Broader guidelines for policy directives must be present.	NIL	Rationalizing tariff structure to remove anti-export bias.	Introducing cascading tariffs on raw materials, intermediates and finished goods to move production toward value-added exports.
Trade	Trade policy focus must be on increased production for export promotion purposes. A comprehensive long -term export policy must be introduced, supported by a well -chalked-out industrial policy. A 15-year Export Policy - owned and monitored by an "Export Cell" at the Independent Planning Commission. It is pertinent to note that the policy should be targeted to enhance competitiveness rather than spoon-feeding.	Trading arrangements involving currency swaps will be pursued to reduce dependence on foreign currencies.	The market would be deregulated in favor of innovation -driven FDI and investment-friendly regimes. Complete the Integrated Transit Trade Management System (ITTMS) at Torkham, Wagha and Chamman borders with modern trade facilities to reduce dwell times and enhance regional economic integration.	Ensuring cohesiveness between revenue policy, trade policy & natio nal industrial policies. Making sure that our foreign exchange rate is based on economic fundamentals. Implement a technical and vocational education reform programme for upskilling our labour force in demand - driven trades.
Internet	Universal internet access at affordable rates is the need of the hour and must be considered a fundamental right of citizens. Greater internet access will help facilitate and remotely provide services, including education, health, and legal services. Consider fully funding fast internet access across the country till the end of 2025. Spectrum auctioning must be considered as a way of providing internet access to all areas of the country and not be taken as a revenue generation activity.		Improve access to IT services such as high speed internet for citizens with the aim of facilitating knowledge acquisition as well as encouraging innovation.

	Consider fully funding fast internet access across the country till the end of 2025. Spectrum auctioning must be considered as a way of providing internet access to all areas of the country and not be taken as a revenue generation activity.
Cities	Commerce and entrepreneurship must be the driving force behind designing and planning cities. Rigid master plans must be let go immediately and replaced with loose guidelines . Zoning should only differentiate between city centers and suburbs . City management must be handed over to a single authority, i.e. Local Government (LG). Vertical expansion must be encouraged by relaxing the floor area ratio. All cities must have well -developed and dense downtowns. Cities must be developed on the lines and idea of 15 -minute cities. Unlocking the dead capital must be a priority. Street vending zones must be created in all cities. The rental housing market must be developed through necessary facilitating regulations. A modern urban transport policy must be	NIL	NIL	NIL
SOEs	adopted. SOEs must have a budget constraint and not be bailed out by the government repeatedly. SOEs must be run through a corporate set — up, including an independent Board of Governors (BOG) and not be under the influence of bureaucracy or ministries. All PSEs must be answerable to the cabinet and parliament against pre-defined objectives and KPIs. Unchecked hiring, primarily politically motivated, must be immediately eliminated. Hiring must be against only the number of positi ons sanctioned by the SOE's BOG. Inefficient and unnecessary SOEs must be privatized entirely through management transfer to the private sector or even closed down.	Launching of a People 's Reform Programme in the loss -making and investment-starved SOEs, in partnership with their workers and relevant provincial governments. A duly empowered task force consisting of independent and r eputable experts as well as workers' representatives will be set up with the first three months of government to prepare, execute and oversee the People's Reform Programme, which will be comprehensive, consultative and time bound.	Decrease the loss incurred by SOEs to zero. Developing an IT -based monitoring & evaluation system to provide operational & financial information of SOEs on a real -time basis. Developing an oversight board of SOEs. Introducing private equity and private operational management mechanism in a select number of SOEs.	Corporatization all SOEs and transferring ownership to a wealth fund, modelled along the lines of Khazanah in Malaysia. Appointing and empowering non -political and autonomous boards. Signing performance contracts wi th boards and agreeing on KPIs .
